Workshop Descriptions

Active Listening Skills: Strategies for All Grade Levels

As a society, we tend to talk more than we listen. Listening, despite being an essential life skill, is often not explicitly taught. While communication skills are often taught in school, the focus tends to be on classroom participation or effective public speaking. Strong listening skills are needed now more than ever and can be systematically taught and measured. Listening to others not only helps students master content, it also promotes understanding of different perspectives, fosters civility and respect, helps students make friends, reduces conflicts, and improves collaboration. This workshop provides tips and strategies to foster effective listening skills at all grade levels. SEL IPE

AI in the Classroom: Friend or Foe?

This interactive workshop is designed to provide educators with an opportunity to explore their experiences and concerns regarding the role of AI in their classrooms. The session will cover ethical considerations, such as data privacy, intellectual property protection, and bias, as well as identify policy needs to balance concerns with effective, responsible use. The workshop will conclude with an exploration of practical strategies teachers can use to maximize their time, including AI tools for lesson planning, differentiated learning, and administrative tasks. IPE

LDR

Art of Giving and Receiving Feedback

This workshop is designed for evaluators, peer coaches, department chairs, TEAM mentors, and anyone who wants to improve on giving and receiving feedback in any context. Constructive feedback encourages reflection and creates reciprocal pathways to ongoing growth and development. This workshop provides educators with specific, practical strategies to build trust and foster collegiality, as well as encourage self-reflection, helping enrich educator practice and enhance student growth and well-being. This session will be highly interactive, and participants will practice giving and receiving feedback with several different partners. IPE TEV LDR

Beyond Bloom: HOT Questioning Techniques That Promote Total Class Participation

This interactive workshop is appropriate for teachers of all subjects and grade levels and is designed to foster higher-order thinking and total participation from all students. It offers practical tools and strategies to encourage students of all abilities and temperaments to think deeply about a topic and feel confident making contributions that enrich class discussions. Tools include Bloom's Taxonomy, Depth of Knowledge charts, Socratic questioning, and dialogic methods, all of which are designed to promote imagination, wonder, creativity, and collaborative problem-solving. Participants will roleplay to practice strategies with their peers and will leave the workshop with practical tools they can begin to use immediately to elevate class discussions. IPE

IPE

Building a Culture of Empathy

Appropriate for teachers of all grade levels and subjects, this workshop focuses on systematically building empathy for others. Included are practical techniques and strategies that can be easily integrated into existing lesson plans that encourage students to listen to others, appreciate different perspectives, and be sensitive to the feelings of others. IPE SEL

Classroom Management Strategies

There are so many things educators need to know and be able to do, but perhaps the most important is how to manage a classroom. This interactive workshop explores the importance of building strong relationships with students as the foundation of classroom management. Participants will be provided practical strategies to implement consistent routines and smooth transitions as well as tips and tools to minimize off-task behaviors. Customizable for all grade levels.

IPE TEV SJE

Cultivating a Sense of Belonging in School

One of the most common words children choose to describe their emotional state is "lonely." This workshop provides simple activities and instructional strategies educators around the state are using to combat student isolation, cultivate community, and foster a sense of belonging in the classroom and in school building.

HWB

SEL

Culturally Responsive Instructional Strategies

Cultural responsiveness involves awareness and understanding about cultural diversity in the classroom, school building, and community. The information and learning tasks in this workshop are designed to help you enhance your lesson plans and instructional practices through systematic exploration of racial and cultural bias and incorporation of culturally sensitive activities, literature, and questioning strategies. Also included are strategies to help students and families feel welcome and part of the school community.

SJE IPE

De-escalation Strategies for Students and Adults NEW!

This practical, interactive workshop equips educators with effective de-escalation strategies for navigating heightened situations with students and adults. Participants will learn how to recognize early signs of escalation, stay grounded under pressure, and communicate with clarity and empathy. Through guided discussion, realistic scenarios, and brief skits, participants will practice responding to challenging moments and explore ways to shift interactions from tension to trust—supporting safety, strong relationships, and productive school environments.

SEL

Developing Executive Functions in Students of All Ages

Executive functions are a set of mental processes that allow us to connect past experiences to present and future action. Executive functions also help us plan, organize, strategize, focus, remember, manage time and space, and regulate emotions and impulses. Students with strong executive functioning perform better in school, have better attendance and behavior, and are more likely to achieve long-term goals they set for themselves. This workshop provides tools and strategies to help teachers systematically improve students' executive functioning skills at all grade levels.

SEL IPE

Developing Meaningful SEL Goals for Teacher Evaluation and Student Growth

Concerns about student mental health and emotional well-being have deepened in recent years, making social-emotional learning a top priority for educators across the country. Many districts are encouraging educators to adopt SEL goals rather than purely academic ones. Learn how to set SEL goals that are meaningful to students and teachers and embedded within the curriculum. SEL is inherently difficult to measure, and this workshop will provide practical, holistic strategies to help make SEL progress visible to students, educators, and parents/guardians.

Difficult Conversations Made Easy

In this interactive session, participants will learn to recognize when it is time to have a difficult conversation and will learn simple strategies to take the fear out of initiating one. The workshop will cover how to manage strong feelings that arise during difficult conversations, as well as how and when to follow up afterward. The workshop includes several opportunities for participants to practice initiating difficult conversations with tact and openheartedness. This workshop is designed to help members address problems proactively, settle differences amicably, promote trust, and contribute to a healthy school climate. TEV LDR HWB

Dispute Resolution Strategies for Teacher Evaluation

This highly interactive workshop is designed to provide teachers with practical strategies and structures to defuse and resolve disputes in an impartial, healthy, transparent way. Useful for department chairs, PDEC representatives, dispute resolution committee members, and classroom teachers, these strategies can be applied to a variety of situations and contexts. Disputes resolved openly and fairly help foster trust and collegiality and promote a positive school culture. This workshop will involve roleplay, and participants will practice resolving common disputes. TEV LDR

Educating with Pride

In recent years, LGBTQ+ issues have become a cultural lightning rod in education. The goal of this workshop is to educate LGBTQ+ educators and their allies on their rights in and out of the classroom and discuss how best to support themselves, their colleagues, and students. We will be discussing the current state of LGBTQ+ issues in education, real-world cases and examples, and what rights you have when navigating complex issues. We will show you how to start becoming the best ally you can be! SJE IPE LAW

Emotional Regulation: Practical Strategies for Students of All Ages

Helping students manage big emotions is essential for learning, relationships, and overall well-being. This interactive workshop explores the foundations of emotional regulation and introduces simple, research-based strategies educators can use to help students recognize, understand, and manage strong feelings in healthy, productive ways. Participants will engage in practical scenarios and role-play activities that bring these strategies to life, providing opportunities to practice responses they can immediately use in the classroom. While designed with elementary educators in mind, the session can be customized for middle or high school settings. SEL

Escape Room Challenge: Playful Learning in the Upper Grades (Limited to 25 participants)

Discover how to harness the power of play in learning by creating an educational escape room for your students. This interactive workshop invites teachers to experience an escape room firsthand, demonstrating how game-based learning can make lessons more engaging and memorable at all grade levels. The session emphasizes the importance of play in fostering deep learning across all age groups. Participants will have time to collaborate and begin brainstorming their own escape room challenge, tailored to their subject area and grade level. By the end of the workshop, you'll leave with practical ideas and strategies for implementing escape rooms in your classroom, engaging students in learning through excitement, problem-solving, and teamwork. IPE

Every Voice at the Table: Strategies to Foster Total Participation NEW!

Whether in classrooms, faculty meetings, or professional learning sessions, meaningful engagement happens when every voice has the opportunity to contribute. This workshop introduces innovative facilitation strategies that move beyond traditional discussion formats to ensure high levels of participation and interaction. Participants will explore practical approaches such as World Café, Open Space, structured dialogue protocols, and other collaborative discussion formats that invite reflection, cultural awareness, shared thinking, and collective problem solving. Educators will leave with adaptable strategies that foster inclusive dialogue, deepen engagement, and ensure all participants have a meaningful opportunity to contribute. IPE

Exploring the Connecticut Code of Professional Responsibility

All educators must demonstrate an understanding of professional responsibilities and ethical practice. This highly interactive, scenario-based workshop engages participants in exploring key competencies and themes. Through real-world situations and collaborative discussion, participants will reflect on their role as trusted professionals whose responsibilities extend beyond the classroom and into the broader community. Emphasizing the highest standards of professionalism, this session highlights how ethical practice serves as a foundation for effective teaching and long-term success. IPE TEV

Gender Achievement Gap: Why Boys Are Falling Behind and What Can Be Done About It

Boys are falling behind girls academically at every level, from kindergarten through graduate school. Girls dramatically outperform boys on every standardized measure of reading and writing achievement and have reached rough parity with males in math and science, except at the very top of the performance curve. Boys are also more likely to get into trouble at school, experiment with drugs, and drop out of school. Nearly 60 percent of students graduating from college are now female, and for the first time in history we see more women than men getting advanced degrees. Left unaddressed, the gender achievement gap in education could have significant destabilizing economic and social impacts. Learn why males may be falling behind and what schools can do to support them academically and emotionally and begin to close the growing gender achievement gap. IPE

Introduction to Student Trauma: Developing a Trauma-Sensitive Classroom

Nearly 7 out of 10 children experience trauma, and many experience multiple traumatic experiences. The impact of trauma on children and adolescents is pervasive and presents challenges in every school and community in the state. We are collectively learning more about the challenges trauma presents to classroom teachers and how to help those who experience trauma overcome its effects. Participants will learn how to identify the signs of trauma and better understand its impact on students and the school community. Participants will also learn practical skills and strategies that can help address student trauma in their classrooms. HWB

Knowledge Is the Best Protection: Understanding Your Rights With Challenging Student Behavior

As the demands to address all of a student's academic and emotional needs have increased, it is vitally important that all teachers are informed of their legal rights and duties related to challenging student behavior.

In this timely workshop, you will learn:

- What procedures you should follow in the event you are threatened or injured by a student
- Why it's important to report any injuries or threats of harm to your principal and what reporting options are available to you
- How the new challenging behavior law may help address behavior issues
- What your association can do to help you take whatever steps are appropriate to protect your rights as an employee, including measures to provide a safer workplace for everyone in the building
- What safety provisions can be negotiated in your collective bargaining agreement related to challenging student behavior LAW HWB

Let Go of Your Stress

While the work is rewarding, educators face high levels of occupational stress and burnout. Addressing the root cause—typically a challenging work environment—is key. At the same time, hitting an internal reset button can help you manage your stress and focus on the things within your control. Recapture your inner peace using tools such as meditation, mindfulness, tai chi, and yoga—techniques that have existed for thousands of years. HWB

Making the Most of Home-Teacher Communication

Home-teacher communication can be difficult. This session provides tips to help you develop and promote a working partnership with families prior to parent-teacher conferences, review different types of conferences, assist you with strategies to use during the conference itself, and provide ideas for sustained family contact and engagement throughout the year. You will also learn valuable approaches to handling conferences where student misbehavior or challenging parents are a factor, with lots of time built in for discussion and perhaps even some roleplaying.

Mind the Moment: Practical Mindfulness Activities for Students and Teachers

Mindfulness is receiving much-needed attention right now, in part due to the pressures of living in an increasingly complex world. Smartphones, busy schedules, and a 24-hour news cycle can be distracting for even the most focused individual. Facebook, Instagram, and Twitter connect us with strangers around the world but also threaten to isolate us from those closest to us. You may find yourself spending more time worrying about the future or dwelling on something that happened in the past rather than fully experiencing the present moment. This is also true of our students, many of whom struggle to concentrate in class and have difficulty learning as a result. Learn how to integrate mindfulness activities into your existing classroom routines without losing instructional time or sacrificing the curriculum. Mindfulness activities can enhance the quality of life for young and old, improve mental focus and classroom behavior, and enhance learning outcomes.

Mini workshop options:

- Coffee Break. Have a cup of coffee and a sweet treat and discuss simple strategies to engage learners, build a positive classroom community, and promote total class participation.
- Stress Reduction and Personal Wellness. Practice several simple exercises to help you reclaim power over your nervous system's response to stress. Includes a wellness gift bag with practical stress-reducing tools and activities.
- Let's Play! Learn different games to play in the classroom that will engage students and make learning fun and durable.

Mythbusters: Understanding Your Legal Rights and Responsibilities in the Special Education Process

This workshop focuses on the laws regarding special education, with a particular emphasis on regular and special education teachers' rights and responsibilities when participating in the special education process. Participants will learn what the law requires of them as well as what they can and cannot do in such areas as PPT meetings, drafting IEPs, and accommodating students in the regular education environment. The impact of special education laws on teachers' working conditions will be integrated throughout the workshop.

Neurodivergence is a Superpower: Unlocking Innovation Through Asset-Based Education NEW!

This workshop reframes neurodivergence as a source of strength, creativity, and high potential in today's classrooms. Educators will explore how differences in thinking—such as ADHD, autism, dyslexia, and other neurotypes—can fuel problem-solving, innovation, and unique perspectives when nurtured through asset-based practices. Participants will learn practical strategies for identifying student strengths, designing flexible learning environments, leveraging interests and talents, and cultivating a culture where diverse minds thrive. By shifting from a deficit lens to a strengths-oriented approach, teachers will walk away prepared to empower every learner and activate the untapped potential within their classrooms.

PDEC Tune-up

This workshop can be customized to meet the unique needs of your district's professional development and evaluation committee (PDEC). It provides a refresher on PDEC roles, responsibilities, and operating procedures and offers an opportunity to build greater trust and a partnership between administration and teachers. It includes an overview of state statutes on leader and educator evaluation guidelines and professional development requirements, a mutual agreement protocol, sample norms, templates, and sample surveys useful in planning professional development and guiding possible revisions to the district's evaluation plan. The workshop includes an overview of innovative practices around the state.

Play-Based Learning: Integrating Purposeful Play into the Early Grades

Young children learn about themselves, others, and the world around them primarily through play. Play is essential for healthy physical, cognitive, and social emotional development. Despite its critical importance, opportunities for children to learn through play have dwindled due to testing demands and the misconception that play takes time away from "real learning." Fortunately, the Connecticut legislature recognized the essential role play has in children's learning and social emotional development and passed Public Act 23-101, requiring the integration of play-based learning in the early grades. This interactive workshop provides an overview of the many benefits of learning through play, discusses ways to integrate more playful learning into the school day, provides practical strategies and activities, and invites participants to engage in purposeful play together. Elementary school

Playful Pathways to the Science of Reading: Play-Based Strategies for Educators and Administrators

Unlock the transformative power of play in early literacy education! This dynamic presentation is designed for educators and administrators who wish to explore the intersection of play and the science of reading. Participants will delve into research-based strategies that highlight the critical role of play in developing foundational reading skills.

Educators will learn how to create engaging, play-centered learning environments that foster literacy development.

Topics will include:

- The principles of the science of reading and its implications for early childhood education.
- Practical play-based strategies that enhance phonemic awareness, vocabulary, and comprehension.
- Techniques for integrating play into structured literacy instruction.
- Assessment methods that value play as a legitimate form of learning.

By the end of this presentation, participants will leave with a toolkit of playful strategies to implement in their classrooms and schools, ensuring that all children have the opportunity to thrive as readers. Join us in this exciting journey to reimagine literacy education through the lens of play!
